CLAY PIPES .- This morning a News reporter drpped into a law, uppainted frame building on the corner of Campau avenue and Franklin street, and witnessed for the first time to his eventful life the operation of making clay pipes. As the fact of the existence of a clay pipe fac tory in Detroit has never yet been published, a few words about the modus operandi of pipe making will not be out of place. All the clay used is purobased at Baltimore, and cests from $90 to $100 per our load. It arrives at the factory in bard, dry lumps, and must be thor cughly soaked in a big tub or tank before it is ready for use. The soft clay is then rolled and kneaded and mixed together until it forms a solid mass without any lumps. Six men sit around a table with a lot of damp clay within cosy reach. Grasping a lump to esc't band the workman rolls it back and forth on the table, shaping it with his hand until it resem large crocks or tubs of fire clay, called saggers. As fast as the saggers are filled they are piled one above another inside a brick kilo, and two or three times a week the kiln is fired and sub jected to intense heat for several hours until the pipes are baked thoroughly white. The stem of each pipe is then coated with a yellow mix ure of shellac, tumeric and other substances to prevent it from sticking to the lips, and the nipe is ready for shipment in boxes partially filled with saw dust. A steady workman can roll and mould eight gross of pipes a day, and is capable of making $10 or $12 per week, if he attends to his business. The factory has a capacity of turning

The circulation isnguishes and grows poor; leanness, pallor, and a loss of muscular and organic power supervene; but, worse than this, the functions associated with and dependent upon digestion, such as evacuation and the secretion of bile, grow irregular, and the organs, whose business it is to discharge those functions, become badly disordered. The tray is then placed out doors in the sun to dry, and after an hour or two is brought inside by the same workman, shoved into an iron mould and pressed into shape with a quick pull at a lever. The hole through the pipe is made by hand with a picco of wire, well one pound of Charleston or Nevassa Phosphate greased.
